It says a good deal about the power of love at first sight when the bride first meets her groom while dressed as a farm animal. When Rebecca Schwartz and Kelly McFarland happened to spot one another at the Halloween costume party of a mutual friend, Rebecca first thought, "Who's the cute guy who didn't dress up?" while Kelly mused, "Who's the cute girl in the chicken costume?" A first date to a Washington Capitals game quickly followed, and after 15 months of dating, Kelly, a foreign affairs officer for the State Department, asked Rebecca to marry him on the night before Washingtonian Bride & Groom's annual Unveiled event, which Rebecca, Washingtonian's director of marketing and events, manages and oversees. Their elegant evening wedding seven months later featured personal vows, candlelight, and spectacular floral centerpieces.
